And then the Court adjourned until Court in Sully over the Sioux Indians at White Stone Hills, Dacotah:

General Sully met the Indians, about 2,500 strong, on the 3d of September, something like two hundred miles north of Fort Pierre, where an engagement ensued. The Indians Mr. occupied two hours in deploying the enemy in various ways, patiently awaiting the arricitizens of our county-though firm and un- val of the command. The enemy were unforce and the battery on the north: the 6th The dead have just been brought in, and Iowa fell in line of battle on the east side presented a horrible appearance. They were of the ravine, and the 2d Nebraska Cavalry all born and raised some fifteen miles from on the west side. The 2d Nebraska opened privilege of being mounted to scout through my and poured round after into the conglo of course, created the most intense excite-ponies, and dogs, the mingled noise of which ment, and the most deadly vengeance is was the most hideous that ever racked human ears.

The Indians fought like demons, but overshot us. The firing gradually ceased as the night advanced. During the night the enemy escaped, leaving everything they posessed in the world on the battle field, even their oining counties, and have been in the rebel squaws and children. It is estimated that their loss of personal property is greater to them than the destruction of the city of New York would be to us. In the morning we found the enemy's dead and wounded in n daytime? These are questions now uni- every direction. As many as three hundred were killed, and the wounded innumerable The Louisville Journal, of October 9, in Our loss, thus far, was about forty killed addition to the foregoing, says, we learn from and wounded. The 2d Nebraska was imme diately ordered to pursue the enemy, which they did, overtaking a part of them about seven miles from camp, where a short en gagement took place, resulting in killing six ndians. Our loss, one killed and one wound-This was the last we saw of them.

We met unmistakable evidence of utter lemoralization and precipitate flight. Our oss during the three days' fighting amounts to sixty-one killed and wounded. Among the cilled is the Adjutant of the 6th Iowa cavalry. We have taken over three hundred prisoners. Chiefs are coming in every day and giving themselves up. We have taken housands of small articles, such as gowns. onnets, household and kitchen furniture, books, and articles of small value that these murdering scoundrels took from the Minne sota people last fall.

The New York Herald publishes a etter dated at Paris, which retails some curious diplomatic gossip. The writer affirms that when Napoleon sent in his message to the Chambers, immediately after the at Assemby. attempt made by the United States Government to block up Charleston harbor by neans of the stone fleet, the secessionists confidently expected that he would denounce it as an outrage upon the rights of the civilized world. They were greatly astonished and disappointed to find that he did nothing of the kind, as Mr. Slidell, the rebel envoy, of the train. In the helpless condition of had predicted that he would come out very the passengers, they could do nothing more boldly. It seems, accordingly to the writer, hat Siidell had bribed Mocquard, the Emperor's private secretary, a man utterly destitute of principle, but possessing much influence with his employer, to procure the nsertion of the unfriendly paragraph in the nessage-Slidell believing that Mocquard could bring this about, and the latter showing him what he declared was a rough draft of the message, which was as hostile toward the United States as could be desired. Sli dell was so elated with this that, as above lerstand, however, they were all paroled and stated, he boasted of the good time coming. This reached Minister Dayton's ears, who, knowing Mocquard's weakness for money outbid the rebel ambassador, and gained a pro. mise from Mocquard that the message should be friendly. It is believed that the secretary took pay from both sides, without ever consulting or advising with the Emperor. That he does such things is well known, the Emperor enjoyed every joke in his saturnine way hugely, and never objecting to any act by which his personal retainers can make money, so long as the State receives no injury. Whatever basis of truth the story may contain-and we are disposed to regard the quantity as exceedingly small-it is believed in Paris, and is a fertile subject for discussion in court circles.
